Bank Deposits Secure

Washington, D. C.—The deposits of more than 387 Kentucky banks are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, Chairman Leo T. Crowley has announced. This number is more than 88 percent of all the licensed institutions in the state.

In the nation more than 14,000 banks or over 93 percent of all the licensed institutions are insured.

Although deposit insurance is now a permanent part of the nation's banking system people generally do not understand it very well, Mr. Crowley said.

"The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is just what the name implies," he pointed out. "It is an insurance organization insuring deposits in banks. This protection is paid for by the banks. The insurance offers full protection to individual depositors up to $5,000. In other words, if an insured bank fails and a person has, say, $4,800 on deposit the corporation would pay him in full. Our statistics have shown that the $5,000 maximum fully protects more than 97 percent of all the depositors in insured banks."

"The procedure is simple when an insured bank gets into difficulties and is forced to close its doors, Mr. Crowley explained.

"Just as soon as a receiver is appointed for the bank the corporation begins to pay depositors the insured amount of their deposits," he said.

"All the individual depositor needs to do is to present his pass book or some other evidence of the bank's deposit and representatives of the corporation, who will be at the bank, will give him his check. The depositor then assigns his insured claim against the bank to the corporation. Thus, the corporation steps into the depositor's shoes.

"In the first payoff which took place recently 99 percent of all the depositors received their money in full.

"With the depositors paid, liquidation of the bank proceeds on a business like basis. Formerly, of course, the depositors had to wait a long time before the liquidation produced any money to pay them and they were usually paid in small amounts. Naturally, they were anxious to get their money as soon as possible and they exerted a great deal of pressure to speed liquidation. This often resulted in hasty and unwise disposal of the bank's assets to obtain ready cash.

"The new system eliminates this danger. Liquidation proceeds efficiently and the maximum value is obtained from the assets. This has two important effects. First the corporation and other creditors of the bank get a maximum return on the money owed them. Second, those who owe the bank have more time in which to meet their obligations."

station to help them find good markets for their products, which they plan to make a superior grade.

Allen county has prospects of good corn and tobacco crops, with pastures already returned to normal condition. Korean hempseed is doing exceptionally well, much of it measuring 14 to 20 inches high, producing good hay and seed.

A lime and alfalfa campaign was held in Laramie county the first week in August. Eight meetings were held, in which the use of limestone to grow good alfalfa was discussed. The Golden Valley Rotary club cooperated in the campaign. Several carloads of limestone will be distributed in the county.

Tobacco Adjustment Ratings

Points of special interest in the tobacco adjustment program at this time include the rating that nonsigners should not be permitted to use the terms of contract signers. Contract signers, on the other hand, may use without limitation the terms of nonsigners.

Under tobacco contracts, where a portion of the tobacco was grown by a share tenant or share cropper, a trustee must be appointed to distribute the first and second adjustment payments, and the deficiency payment in case production is less than the market allotment. The trustee appointed must be mutually agreeable to all tenants and the landowner. The appointment of the trustee and the signatures of all share tenants or share croppers and the landowner must be on the certification of compliance form before any adjustment payment will be made to them.

If any production adjustment contract signer did not plant wheat in 1932 or 1933 he will not be permitted to plant wheat for grain this fall. This ruling is applicable to both the cash and the deficiency payment. A corn acreage in excess of the 1932 or 1933 average does not constitute a violation of the tobacco contract unless corn is sold. Tobacco contract signers are allowed to grow an excess acreage of corn if all of it is fed on the farm.

WANTS LEGION CONVENTION

Man O'War Post no. 8, American Legion, at Lexington, Ky., with the second largest membership in the state, has definitely announced that it will try to secure the 1935 state Legion convention in its city.

This post has one of the finest clubs in the state, with all the necessary facilities, such as dining service, meeting rooms, card rooms for both Legion and Auxiliary, and the club is in the heart of the city.

It also has one of the best dance floors in its city, around the walls of which are painted insignias of divisional, corps, and other war-time outfits. The only arrangement of its kind in the entire state of Kentucky.

Lexington has ample hotel accommodations to handle a convention of this size satisfactorily and splendid transportation facilities with favorable rates to all. V. L. SLADE, Sec.

League Social

The Epworth League will sponsor a social for the young people of the community, ages 12 to 23, in the basement of the Methodist church Tuesday night, Aug. 21, at 8:30. There will be interesting games and a short program.

My pastor never preaches the gospel and I would stare to death if it were not for the gospel I got over the radio. That is what I heard a lady say recently. "The gospel is the power of God unto salvation." People are not hearing the gospel from all of the pulpits in this country, but God is raising up men to preach the gospel. Millions of people daily are hearing the message.

It is the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation. It is not education. It is not ethical teaching. It is not social service. It is the gospel. What is the gospel? The gospel is a good news story. The good news is that Jesus Christ died on the cross for our sins. When a man realizes he is a sinner the gospel is the best news he ever heard.

Paul said he was glad to have the gospel preached, whatever might be the motive of the preacher. I thank God for the gospel whether it is preached on the street corner, under a brush arbor, in a tent, in the pulpit, or over the radio. It is not where the gospel is preached that is the power of God unto salvation. I believe in credentials and in decency and in order. But God didn't say if somebody who has credentials preaches the gospel it will save people. He said that it is the gospel which does the work.

The preacher is human, but the gospel is divine. Men may resist a preacher, but they cannot resist the gospel without doing it at the peril of their souls.

Boon Peyton of Belmont surprised Henry Cole a few days ago by presenting him with a small handmill, white and fresh, bearing his father's name, J. H. Cole, and dated June 8, 1877. At that time Mr. Cole's father was in the grocery business in a room at the Cole hotel and the mill advertised this business.

The Jail Is Full

In recording the events of the times a newspaper must sometimes write about facts and events which are no credit either to the paper or to the community.

This is the kind of task the writer of this article faces at this time. The county jail here is built to hold prisoners and living quarters for the jailer. For some time past the jail has been almost continuously overcrowded. Jailer Rhodon informs us that with the opening day of circuit court on Monday of this week he had fifty regular prisoners for whom he was duty responsible.

It is said that a very large proportion of these prisoners were charged with violation of the liquor laws in one term or another. The headquarters of the state laws and the leniency of the courts is blamed for the increasing difficulty in dealing with this problem.

Another reason, and perhaps the one of most significance, is the attitude of the public conscience toward the liquor business and its victims. The public conscience too generally is in sympathy with the unlawful traffic in liquor, and with the unlawful acts which result from the consumption of either lawful or unlawful liquor.

Too often when a crime is committed by a man under the influence of liquor, pity for the criminal and excuses for the act are used to prevent even the modest penalty which is the sole protection which the law has.

Whenever the public conscience will hold the intoxicating liquor itself responsible and will plan and provide means to protect civilization from its ravages, we will see the dawn of a brighter day.

The jail is full to overflowing. Never in the history of Morgan county had so many occupants at one time. The county cannot afford at this time a building which would decently accommodate all these prisoners. Citizens of Morgan county, what is the answer?

WOMEN WILL HELP

Hopkinsville, Ky., Aug. 11. Democratic women's clubs of Kentucky plan to give active support to the Democratic nominees in the November election, according to Mrs. T. C. Underwood, president of the organization.

Pointing out that the clubs had taken part in the primaries, Mrs. Underwood said that now that nominees have been chosen the women's organization will give them its fullest support.

"As we face the fall election, Democrats should keep in mind how necessary it is at this particular and critical time to support our candidates when they are chosen by our party. All of the President's steps to recovery are only half climbed, but we are on our way up, which means much. The President said, 'It seems our duty not only to make the right path clear, but also to tread that path,' and we should add, 'He who sees the goal and sees that it is glorious has no need to weep over the perils of the way.'"

NATIONAL FOREST IS STARTED

Mr. Sterling, Ky., Aug. 10.—The second tract has been acquired by the United States in the establishment of a national forest in eastern Kentucky.

The Council Rock Land Company tract of 5,071 acres, also known as the Marsh tract, has been paid for and recorded in the name of the United States.

This tract is in Rowan county on the waters of Big Perry of Triplet creek, tributary of Licking river, and about five miles east of Morehead.

William E. Smalley's tract of 187 acres, also in Rowan county, on the waters of Nickell branch of Dry creek, was the first to be paid for and recorded in the name of the United States.

More money has been set aside for a number of other tracts which it is expected will be paid for during the month. Several tracts in north Morgan county are being considered.

Clock Design Adopts The Airplane Motif

THE influence of airplane and stream-line motif upon present day decorative design in home furnishings is clearly revealed in this telechron motored electric clock. The clock is of the easel-back type, designed for desk or table use. Self-starting, it is as modern as the day-after-tomorrow, and can be plugged in on the ordinary A.C. light socket.

FARMERS' COLUMN

The Farm and Home

Trench shovs will be used to rouse, feed in many parts of the country this year.

They cost little more than labor and give satisfactory results where properly made. Interested farmers should write to the Experiment Station, Lexington, for construction directions.

Rats often cost more than taxes. Fall is a good time to conduct rat killing campaigns, both by individual farms and by communities. Control may be by poisoning, trapping, gassing, and the use of dogs and cats.

Hay must be exposed to the weather in order to cure sufficiently to keep, but it should be put up as soon as possible after it has reached the stacking stage. Unnecessary exposure to sunlight, dew, and rain lowers the quality.

It is considered good practice to sow a cover crop among grapes in August. Rye, barley, or oats are often used, sometimes with the addition of winter vetch. The rye-vetch combination has been used with satisfaction on the experiment station farm at Lexington.

Keep the chicken house, equipment, and poultry yards about the house thoroughly clean during the warm weather. Droppings should be cleaned frequently, and the floor and nests occasionally. It also pays to watch for lice and mites and to spray nests and boards.

Keeping clothes clean tends to lengthen their life. Dust and dirt act like sandpaper and rub and cut the threads. Such soil is removed by proper cleaning and the destruction of the materials checked. In buying garments or materials ask this question: How easily can they be cleaned?

Kentucky Farm News

Metcalfe county farmers are interested in the use of marl instead of ground limestone on their land. Several new marl beds have been discovered in the county and samples of marl have been sent to the agricultural experiment station for analysis.

In response to advice of County Agent J. L. Miller, Madison county has a large number of new flocks of sheep. Most of them are small, but composed of well bred animals, including purchased rams. The county agent advocates small flocks, given good care.

The Warren County Dairy Herd Improvement association began operating July 1, with Clarence S. Bell of Mason county employed as tester. A total of 478 cows were entered in the association the first month.

Hancock county sorghum molasses producers are seeking improved markets for their product. Twenty-five farmers recently asked the experiment

Adaptable Apples

APPLES are one of the most adaptable of fruits. Made into superlative apple sauce by the unequalled mechanics of the canners, they form the basis of many good dishes. For instance:

Apple Fluff: Beat one cup heavy cream, and add one-fourth cup confectioner's sugar. Add contents of a No. 2 can of apple sauce, and fold in one-half cup chopped nuts and one-half cup chopped dates. Chill. Serves six.

Apple Cup Custards: Beat three egg yolks slightly, and add one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon lemon juice, the contents of a No. 2 can apple sauce, three-fourths cup milk and one-eighth teaspoon nutmeg. Fold in three stiffly-beaten egg whites and sprinkle nutmeg over the top, after pouring into custard cups. Set in hot water, and bake in a slow oven—325 degrees—for about forty minutes or until set. Serve cold. Serves eight.

More Dainty Dishes

Apple and Coconut Snow: Beat two egg whites stiff (yolks can be used in custard or mayonnaise for the next day's dinner). Fold in one cup of canned apple sauce, half the contents of a 4-ounce can of moist coconut, two teaspoons lemon juice and two tablespoons confectioner's sugar, and pile lightly in glass cups. Put a small dab of jelly or marmalade on top of each for garnish, and chill till ready to serve. Serves four.

Dessert Salad: Slice two large bananas lengthwise and place, cut side up, in four individual nests of lettuce. Sprinkle with juice of half a lemon, and pile one cup of canned apple sauce along the tops. Sprinkle with canned moist coconut and chopped walnuts, and garnish with mayonnaise. Serves four.

BERYLLIUM METAL BEING DEVELOPED

X-rays, microscopes, and highly intricate processes are being used at the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, to produce a steel alloy lighter, stronger, and more resilient than ever before, says London Times Magazine.

If the search succeeds it is likely to start a revolution in the engineering world that will repeat the story of Bessemer steel, and mean millions of pounds of trade and industry to the nation which first exploits it, for it will certainly revolutionize ship and aircraft construction, bridge design, building, and many other forms of engineering.

When airplanes, especially, created a demand for lightness and strength combined, scientists and metallurgists thought of beryllium, which responded by soaring to the prohibitive price of about £5,000 per pound. During the last ten years research into the possibilities of beryllium as an alloy to lighten steel without diminishing its qualities of strength and elasticity has been intensified, the two leading rivals being this country and Germany.

The first essential step is to produce a specimen of pure beryllium, as in its impure state it is too brittle for use. Some years ago the impurity was reduced to 0.5 per cent, but the X-ray has proved still deeper into the structure of the metal until an ingot of pure beryllium, smooth, polished, with a suggestion of silver, has been produced, and now the next step is to apply it to industry and commercialize it.

We have deposits of beryl in Cornwall, Aberdeenshire, and Ireland, and several of the bounties have rich deposits. And the price has fallen to 115 a pound!

RIGHT TO THE POINT

Sensitiveness is one of the disguises of pride.

If one is considered "cultured," he has to live up to it.

There was never an ill thing made better by meddling.

Few of the new styles are approved by a man over forty.

It matters less to man where he is born than how he can live.

We are all emotional, but we ought to try not to be so much so.

Patience is mostly hoping for the best; and it doesn't take much strength of mind to do that.

"Craziest Road" Improved

Once known to international motorists as the "craziest highway in the world," the 365-mile stretch between Shanghai and Nanking, China, has been converted into an excellent motor route. On the first run over the new highway, two American automobiles established a new record for the stretch, being the first motor vehicles to travel from Shanghai to Nanking entirely under their own power. Even though the highway was opened formally, soon afterward, it still was under construction at many points when the two cars made their run. Consequently, the cars traveled the narrow streets of Chinese villages where an automobile never before had been seen.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Japan Honors Edison

A society has been organized in Japan to collect funds for a stone monument to Thomas Edison. It will be at Yawata, in Yamashiro province, whence Mr. Edison obtained his first supply of bamboo carbonization which made possible the filament for electric bulbs. Japan celebrated, throughout the nation, Edison's eighty-fifth birthday, and also the fiftieth anniversary of the electric light.

WOOLEN STOCKINGS USED FOR HOARDING

The famous French "woolen stocking" has some modern equivalent, as a receptacle for hoarded coins appears to be in as effective popularity as ever, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. One of the chief reasons for official hesitation to release metal currency has been the fear that it would disappear as soon as it could be obtained.

In planning the new silver coins of 10 and 20 francs the precaution was taken to make them of very low intrinsic value. The silver in the 10-franc piece is worth no more than a franc and a half, and that in the 20-franc coin is only double that value.

Nevertheless, the hoarding of the coins has begun. Most people realize that such a proceeding is quite stupid, but the habit of laying aside a stock of ringing coins dies hard in France, especially in the country districts. It is feared that even the nickel pieces of five francs, when they are issued, will also find their way into the peasants' "stocking," although they are really worth only a quarter of a franc.

But the greatest problem of the kind is concerned with the issue of gold coins, and it is likely that a long time will elapse before these see the light again.

The Banque de France has a stock of 648,000,000 of gold available for coining. The owner of banknotes can insist on payment in gold, but, as the bank's stock of the metal consists of francs worth £1,720 each, this is the smallest unit available. There is therefore practically no demand on the part of the general public.

FRENCH HORSEWOMEN NOW RIDE ASTRIDE

Women have gained another victory over tradition. They are to be allowed to ride astride in certain events at horse shows, the fashionable events of Paris and strongly hedged by tradition, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.

Hitherto it has been a strict rule that all women competitors should ride side-saddle, although a majority of them who cultivate the equestrian art in the Bois de Boulogne have ridden astride for years.

The governing committee of the horse shows has, however, maintained its conservative attitude by ruling that the break with tradition will only be tolerated in a limited number of events. The reason for the decision to permit such a change at all is that for the events in question there were not sufficient entries.

Riding astride was introduced into Paris by English women. The first French woman who appeared in the Bois in riding breeches were jeered at and some of them even pelted with stones.

A little later Parisians were won over to the idea when they were forced to admire the skill with which certain English women managed their horses.

Seal Catch Sets Record

Establishing a record, the largest take of fur seals from the Pribilof Islands herd for 34 years was reported, for the last season, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The take totaled 54,550 skins, compared with 49,336 last year. When the United States bureau of fisheries took over supervision of the seal herd in 1910, it numbered only 135,000 animals. Since that time, the annual take has increased almost without interruption and at the same time the herd has increased to about 1,300,000 animals. More than 500,000 seals have been killed in the herd since 1910, but since only the surplus three-year-old males are taken, the herd has grown in size. According to the treaty under which the United States government assumed control of the Pribilof herd, both Japan and Canada are entitled to 15 per cent of the skins taken.

Irish Exiles Club Closed

The Irish club of London, once one of the most famous resorts in the world for "exiles from Erin," has finally succumbed to its many vicissitudes. Founded in the 30s, the club was, in its heyday, noted for its Bohemian atmosphere and for the speeches delivered at its St. Patrick's day celebrations.

A Paris Breakfast

NEARLY every true devotee of that fascinating city, the capital of France, has made the traditional trip at dawn to the "Halles Centrales," the central markets, to see the auctioning off of the foods brought in from the country. Mounds of artichokes and other vegetables, heaps of crisp green lettuce and huge bunches of white celery, to be consumed that day in the world-famous restaurants of Paris, are bid in briskly during that morning hour. There is much bargaining and hawking and a great hubbub of rapid talk.

And after you are tired of watching the hunky Frenchmen in their blue blouses and the sharp-tongued women in their black dresses, and feel suddenly faint for food, then you go to a restaurant and sit down to onion soup. This is the famous dish of the Paris central markets. Delicious, elusive, but flavorful, warming and satisfying, it makes you wonder why on earth you don't have it at home every day.

A Difficulty Solved

But there's a difficulty about this. Just what kind of onion soup do you think your own particular cook would make for you? If you have a French chef—yes—perhaps! But the average American cook is incapable of making anything that remotely resembles that Parisian early morning gastronomic poem known as onion soup.

There's a way out, however, a way that can be followed in every city and town in our country. Canned onion soup with the true Parisian flavor is now available everywhere. Just stir it and shut your eyes, and you'll fancy yourself in Paris among all the cheerful uproar of the Halles Centrales at dawn.

Nerves

Do they torture you by day?

Keep you awake at night?

What is it that keeps hospitals open and doctors busy? NERVES
What is it that makes your face wrinkled and makes you feel old? NERVES
Nine times out of ten it's NERVES that make you restless, worried, haggard.

When nerves are over-taxed, you worry over trifles, find it hard to concentrate, can't sit still. Nerve Strain brings on Headache.
Nervous people often suffer from Indigestion. There may be absolutely nothing wrong with the organs of digestion, but the Nerves are not on the job to make the organs do their work properly.

Nerves

Do they interfere with your work; ruin your pleasure; drive away your friends?

You're cheating yourself and the man who pays you if you work when your NERVES are not normal.
You can't have a good time when you are nervous. You can't make or keep friends when you are keyed up and irritable. You may excuse yourself, but to others you are just a plain crank.

Tablet Memorializes Cable

A tablet commemorating the laying of the first submarine cable in North America has been unveiled at Charlottetown, P. E. I., according to a bulletin from the Canadian National railways. The cable was laid in November 22, 1852, across the strait of Northumberland from Tormentine, N. B., to what is now Borden, P. E. I., says the writer. It consisted of a single strand of copper wire, encased in rubber with an armored covering, the whole thing being a half inch in diameter. The cable was laid by the Anglo-American Cable company, which has been succeeded in Canada by the Canadian National Telegraphs. The original cable has long been discontinued and more modern services substituted.

Irish Schools Are Criticized

Because teachers and pupils in rural schools of the Irish Free State must spend so much time in reviving the Irish language they have no time to take up scientific farming instruction. This, T. Derrig, Free State Minister for Education, told a group of educators meeting in Dublin. The old idea of learning reams of matter in flowery language, which young people rarely understood, and which bore no relation to the facts of life around them, is dying hard, he said. He added this was intended to train memories, but the best memories were found in schools where the poetry and plays were not learned.

Better Breakfasts

THE wise housewife knows that there are mornings when "he" doesn't feel like getting up. But it is imperative that "he" should get up in order to "bring home the bacon"—and we don't necessarily mean breakfast bacon. What does the wise housewife do when she is confronted by this morning lethargy? Does she call imperatively? No, she cooks! And she leaves "his" door ajar so that the fumes of coffee and the odor of cooking eggs will appeal to his senses of hearing and smell, rather than appealing to his conscience which may be somewhat sleepy at the moment. This is the sort of breakfast waiting for him:

Feed Melon
Creamed Eggs on Toast
Preserves
Coffee

Not much cooking, you see, but quite enough to get him out of bed if he is anything of an epicure. And here is the recipe for the Creamed Eggs on Toast: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and one and a half cups diluted evaporated milk, and season to taste with salt, pepper and paprika. Add one chopped canned pimiento, one tablespoon chopped parsley and five hard-cooked eggs cut in pieces. Serve on toast points. This serves four.

Fresh and Hot

The coffee, of course, must be fresh and hot. There's only one way to have it fresh and that is to buy one of the brands that come in the vacuum-packed cans which keep it fresh.
